Hi,

My observation is that this is a terrible idea for rural housing. I am from Bellurgan and needed to move to Dublin to gain an education and start a career. I would love to move home in the near future and build a house and start a family in this area. Why should I be punished by being denied planning permission where I was brought up. Surely restricting people from living where they are from will have a detrimental impact on rural communities?

I really hope this draft plan does not go ahead or at least gets amended to ease restrictions on the rural areas. How can you just circle a large portion of the map and say this is needed for agricultural use so you cannot build here?

Regards,

JP
