

To whom it may concern,

I am from farming family who own their own land, with siblings also wishing to build, it is incredibly unfair to force parents to choose which 2 of their children will get to build on land that they own and have looked after thought out their lives. Agriculture is being told to change; moving towards a more organic type of agriculture which more labour is needed for to farm. Therefore if family members, who plan to work on the farm, are unable to build on their own land who do you think is going to be able to maintain this type of farming which Europe is insisting must be done.

My family regularly go walking in Ravensdale and what distracts us from the beautiful scenery is not the houses that complement the landscape but the motorway the runs right through the valley; which despite being objected to by the residents; Louth country council agreed to; completely destroying the natural beautiful of Ravensdale.
