Bibliographic History:	The records in this collection are concerned with the running of St Peter's National School, Dromiskin, known in Irish as Scoil Naomh Peadar, Droimineasclainn. The following history of Dromiskin NS is taken from the website of Dromiskin NS:

Apart from the monastic schools which must have flourished here during the early Christian Period, we find little reference to formal education in Dromiskin until 1692, when records inform us of the existence of an English and Latin schoolmaster named Samuel Rankin. The few Catholic children who received an education subsequent to the passing of the Penal Laws would have resorted to the hedge schools, whereas the low Protestant members would hardly justify the establishment of school in the area. In 1825 we are told of a schoolmaster who "may be perfectly qualified but it is impossible for him to do justice to the children in the hovel provided for Educational purposes. Pity the Rector does not use a site of approx. 1 acre which is convenient and available for a new school". In 1837 such a schoolhouse was built by funds collected by Mrs. Mc Clintock (she later became Lady Rathdonnell), Dromiskin House, (Mc Mahon's live there now)

Provision for the education of Catholic children became available when the National Education Act came into force in 1831, and what is locally called the 'old old school' was built under the jurisdiction of the National Board of Education. It was built by funds collected by Mrs Mc Clintock (she later became Lady Rathdonnell), Dromiskin House in 1837. For many years until the 'old school' was built in 1926 this establishment provided an excellent education to the large school-going population during and prior to the Famine years and subsequently during periods of unrest covering the Land War Years and War of Independence. In the year 1844, Patrick Quinn, the Principal, was awarded Lord Morpeth's Premium (awarded only in cases of special excellence). A farm known locally as the 'Model Farm' (presently inhabited by Mr. Tom Dooley) was provided, and young aspiring farmers were instructed in 'Crop Rotation' under the supervision of Mr Quinn.

Many excellent scholars were produced who distinguished themselves in various walks of life at home and abroad. Amongst the most noteworthy past pupils were, Doctor Conroy, later to become Bishop of Ardagh and Clonmacnoise; and Chief Kindlon, who, after a colourful career as a mariner of repute, became head of the New York fire service and played a prominent part in fund-raising for the construction of St Peter's Roman Catholic Church. Other teachers who served in this school were: Mr Crawley (a Corkman), Mr. Callan (who resided in the teachers' residence), Mr. Joe Armstrong later Principal of Blackrock N.S. and who married Mr. Morgan's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mc Ardle and James Morgan, who attended the school as a pupil and monitor before taking up duty as an assistant teacher.

What is now referred to as the 'old school' was built in 1926 under the managership of Canon Johnson P.P. and served the educational needs for approximately fifty years. One of the first schools built by the Saorstát Eireann government following independence, it became the envy of many who had, over the preceding years suffered the indignity of a system of education starved of financial support. At a time when dry-toilets were the norm, the introduction of flush toilets and wash hand basins was really revolutionary. So many parishioners at the time could not avail of what we now regard as basic hygienic facilities in their own homes for many years afterwards. The current school was built in ...

The census returns for 1821 state that Christopher Fitzsimmons aged 55 was the schoolmaster. James Hart [protestant], aged 38 is also listed as schoolmaster (History of Kilsaran union of parishes by Reverend James B Leslie, 1908).
