

What other Requirements are there when carrying out Development?

You must comply with all legislative requirements depending on the type of development. For example, all new buildings, alterations to existing buildings or changes of use, except for those specifically exempted, must comply with the Building Control requirements. They must all be designed and constructed in accordance with the Building Regulations and Fire Safety Certificates and Commencement Notices, where applicable, must be obtained prior to commencement of development. More detailed information is available on our website or your agent will advise you of the requirements for your proposed development.